Intersurgical i-gel® Supraglottic Airways

The second generation supraglottic airway with a non-inflatable cuff for use in anesthesia. Quick, easy and reliable to insert, i-gel is ideal for use as a routine airway in anesthesia as it provides high seal pressure and reduced trauma. It also incorporates a gastric channel to provide additional protection against aspiration and has the versatility to be applicable for use during difficult airway management, as a rescue device and a conduit for intubation (with fiberoptic guidance). Single-use.

Dual Nasal Hoods

The unique Dual Nasal Hood with LuerSafe provides optional CO₂ monitoring during dental procedures that utilize nitrous oxide or other forms of sedation.

By tracking the patient's expired CO₂, clinicians can evaluate the ventilation condition of the patient during sedation and make the judgment to assess and treat the patient.

Designed to provide desired gas to both nostrils and also sample CO₂, at the same time. Quality CO₂ waveforms are achieved as the patient's expiratory flow will divert fresh gas away from the inhalation channel.

Feature Flexicare's unique cap-less self-sealing LuerSafe port, which will only accept the correct corresponding color-coded LuerSafe 6' monitoring line to be fitted to open the valve and provide uninterrupted flow to sample CO₂ levels.
